FROM THE REPERTORY.

THE CHRONICLE.

No. V.

We learn that the organ of the Democratic will in Boston, the renowned John Anthony Pasquin Williams, Editor of the Indepedent Chronicle, is running about among his acquaintance, inquiring what he must do ? -- what he had best do ? - ite intimates already an intention to quit the country-and where will this commodity of faction go?

Democrats-one word.

This same Anthony Pasquin, whose fervour in the cause of equal rights and equalization of property has set some of your souls in a flame, as you read--- this calumpiator, in the postilential recesses of the Chronicle Office, has earned his miserable subsistance for some months past, by throwing his fith at the first characters that shone in the revolution, or gave dignity to our national councils -- this " mercenary wretch" as he was once called by one of the most respectable Judges that ever graced a bench, is now (as report says) going to France!! -Yet this man whose praise of Mr. Jefferson have been dealt, out to you as the voice of truth and soberness, is now going, as he boasts, to France, to libel the Emperor --- with his traises. And can you adhere without suspicion to a party, which is reduced to the necessity of employing such means, and that clandestinely? But to return to the trial.

After Mr. Erskine, Counsel for Pasquin, had finished his remarks, evidence of the plaintiff was administered : the object of this was merely to prove the fact, that the book containing the supposed libel on the plaintiff had been sold by Mr. Faulder, the defendant. This was readily substantiated .---Mr. Carrow in cross-examining the witnesses made it likewise appear that the " said fohn" was the author among his " much admired works" of several publications entitled " The New Brighton Guide" " Authentic History of Ireland --- the PIN BASKET TO THE CHILDREN OF THESPIS," and "Shrove Tuesday."

In order to justify the language of the supposed libel, Mr. Garrow caused several passages to be read from the " popular works" of Pasquin; but though his object was to prove that the said "John" merited all the severity of Mr. Gifford, he requestep that should the reader meet, by accident, with any passage Too improve and Too in-DECENT to be read, even in a court of justice, to omit them entirely. Having given the court proper specimins of the nature of this man's writings, who now came forward to put his hand deep into the pocket of the defendant, Mr. Garrow proceeded.

Gentleman of the jury, I stand here under the retainer of the defendant Mr. Fau'der, who is one of the forty booksellers against whom the present plaintiff has tho't fit to bring actions to recover damages from from them, for the injury done to his reputation, principally to his reputation, as an admired author. He has certainly a right, as stated bythe mouth of my Karned friend, " to apply to the laws of his country for redress."

Happy Country ! in which the condition of the subject, is such that no man, however strongly suspected of having committed the blackest and the foulest crimes that are to be found in the black cacalogue of guilt, can be condemned without being heard ;---in which no man, whatever may have been his character from his cradle upwards, can be deprived of the right of coming forward to vindicate his own fame, and to seek redress from those injuries which he conceives he may have sustained.

Happy Country! in which any man of this description, coming to seek rid ess from the law, may command the able assistance of my learned friend; who, tha' engaged in such a cause, and for such a man, stings, (O this virtuous and b nev len has not only contrived to throw all the disgrace attached to the business, Ifar from himself, but by his conduct in it, has ad led if possible new honor to his professional sonal acquaintance.

Happy Country! in which an Advocate can be brought forward to state the plaintiff's, complaint; which plaintiff, for any thing that advocate may know to the contrary, has done all in his power to destroy the honor for which he was laboring; to wound his peace, to ruin his reputation, I should be justified in basing and despis, and to make his family wretched.

My learned friend has not read Anthony Pasquin's works-nor have I; but I of drudging through a few of his disgusting pages since the defence of Mr. Faulder has been committed to my care. For the

of those described in the supposed libel, who are " weak enough to deprecate this, miserable object's abuse." I give him full leave, if he does not think me too insignificant, to publish a book, and to libel me as soon as he pleases. I know, for one, that libels are no very dreadful things-if a man will but take care of his own honor, it signifes nothing though he be libelled from this. the beginning of January to the end of December. Gentlemen, I say this experimentally; for, during the first 8 years of my profession, during the scrutiny of the Westminster election, I was libelled daily, by a person who died by poison, at the bar of a court of justice, in Ireland, under a prosecution for high treason; I speak of the Rev. Mr. Jackson-peace to his ashes! so I quarrel not with libellers.

Mr. Williams has a right to say if he pleases, "I am not accustomed to public life, or capable of delivering the sentiments with which he is impressed, in a court of law, and you, Mr. Erskine, are to do it for me; but it I were to state my case, I should say, Gentlemen, first examine whether the defendant has sold this book, and whether it applies to me; if it does, it has been read by many who must detest me, this is grievous, and I must . ply to the laws for redress; poverty a man can bear-sickness a man can bear, it is the visitation of heaven-but a wounded spirit, or the loss of reputation, who can bear?" I am glad to find such sentiments from such a quarter, I am glad, I say, to find that the man who states himself upon the record " an author by profession," and who "by the publication of his works has amassed to himself great gains," feels so sensibly any thing that reflects upon his reputation, and desires you to vindicate his honor.

Gentlemen Mr. Williams shall have a second advocate in me. I will state his case he has a right to say "I am a subject of the king, I venerate all the establishments of the country, civil and religious, I respect private character; I think it of the last moment that it should be vindicated when it is wounded; If you take my money I can live, the loss of money is nothing -If you deprive me of my friends I can survive that; but take away my character and I am undone." He has a right to say I am an admirer of the fine arts, and I have protected the fine arts." He has a right to say "I love virtue but I love it most when in distress," and therefore you will find in some of the passages which I shall read to you, that Mr. William's has run the career of virtue, in defence of suffering innocence. He found Mr. Hastings under an impeachment of the House of Commons --- he has a right to say that he exerted himself for Mr. Hastings's defence; he tho't, him suffering to use his own words -- as Daniel in the Lion's den -- As persecuted by a set of blood hounds, hunting him down like a BANDITTI for the sake of pillaging him." Gentlemen, he tells you, as I shall read by and by from one of his "admired works," which has been proved; he tells you, that he lost his situation as an author in two of the diurnal prints, the Cometand the Star, because he defended Mr. Hastings, and because the proprietors though he paid more attention to the friendship of Mr. Hastings, than to their interests. Mr. Williams certainly has a right to state ail his merit, and it is a dreadful thing to deprive him of it. What has this " intamous Libeller," the author of the Baviad, said of him? Why-and most impudently has he said it! I caution all mankind to have nothing to do with Mr. Williams; if they have, let them look at the " face of Mr. Hastings." Now, what is the fate of Mr. Hastings? Gentlemen I will presently tell you; not in any language of mine, but I will read it to you as Mr. Williams, who is "not accustomed to pur) lichie," would read it to you, in order to prove how he was treated, after he had undergone so much in defending Mr Haor ature! so overflowing with milk of human kindness!) merely as an injured, unprotected man, with whom he had no per-

Well then, afterfall this excess of goodness; what I reneat, has this libeller in the Bavaid said of Mr. Williams? Why, he has said in effect-if there is any body, yaid enough to wish for his praise, or put h mself under his protection, I hearthy pity him : indeed. after what has happened to Mr. Hastings, ing him -Mr. Williams' poem is then refered to as the grounds of this remark; and the unfortunate passage libelled by my have been driven to the painful necessity learned friend, follows as a deduction from the premises.

Gentlemen we have seen how good 2 friend Mr. Williams was to Mr. Haistings performance of this duty, Anthony Pas. -let us now see how he was requitted for state and age is to think, I will not be do terred from the exposure of hypocrisy or criminality. Though an envenomed he has repeatedly labored to organize my mue der it has not diminished my zeal; I was edn. eated to love virtue and despise cunning in Gracious heavens! what a barbarous idea to wound the feelings of such a man

" I shall now proceed," he continue " to develope a series of transactionstha fill me with s trow; I allude to Warra Hastings, whose real character I most i lily misunderstood." Mr. Hastings'ch racter I do not pretend to know; but fine the style in which Mr. Williams is pleased to speak of him, one could imagine h could not be a gentleman -- neither doll know how he first become the object of his protection;" but I take God to wines that the protection of such a wretch a pears to me a thousand times worse than seven years impeachment.

He afterwards gives an account of the manner in which he took up the notion of being weeful to Mr. Hastings. " As my friendships are erected on an ample basis, I pursued his foes wherever I found them During the last hime years, I have edited more periodical publications than any other existing personage, and in all of them, ! constantly manifested my fervour for him; nay, I even lost two of them, viz. the Sar and the Comet, of which I was the paren, from a supposition that I paid more attention to the cause of Warren Hustings than to the interest of the proprietors. Involved his honour in in my best and most papelur poems. I have argued in his behalf in every class of society, until my vehemence begot a thirst; and somertan yield to the idea that he was the momen hit enemies nad depicted, I relinquished the acquaintance of some valuable gentle. men,"---here is a sacrifice !--- " who were the common friends to Mr. Burke and my. self." Poor gentlemen! their fate must excite pity wherever it is told. They had the inexpressible misfortune, because the thought Mr. Burke right, and Mr. Hat. ings not quite so innocent as it suited Ma Williams's views to think him just at that period, to "lose the friendship" of a man, who declares, in the work I hold in my hand, that he has not " a friend in the world," and who must be known to be in that deserted state, whether he hadde. clared it or not! For, Gentlemen, how should he have friends? Even it nature, who set her mark upon him, had not point ed him out as the enemy of all manling, still it appears from his multifarious and daily increasing libels, that he is utterly incapable offeeling any degree of friend ship for any human being whatever, I nothing is too low for his rancour.

Their Majestres on the throne, with all that is great and good in this county have been involved as he terms it in his pope her performances, I protest, upon my hom, I would not say so in this place, unless he had put the book in every one's hands there are some passages which, if I had to defend my brother or myself, I would not, nav, I could not, read in a court of justice; there are some passages that reflect not only on the Prioce of Wales, but on his illustreous consort and the innocent babe in the cradle, that no consideration would induc me to read in a court of Justice. Its should be necessary, I would ask your take the book that contains them out of court and read it; and this is the man woo comes here to justify his character! I'm is the common traducer, the general libel ler, who asks you to put your hand det into the pocket of Mr. Faulder, and ville d cate his fume.

The prep e, &c. for the invasion, issu he cause of refusing all con ith vessels of every descri ption in the last Paris pa La Vendee is in itself ou dictory. According the most dangerous principle, such as nothing but extreme benevolence of the Emperor could overlook; according to the conclusion, there is not a particle of guilt in the whole country, and the Emperor has done nothing more than resort to his old habit of " pardoning all the innocent !"

If General Augereau has really obtained the Emperor's appointment to sail from Brest, as commander of an army for England, it may truly be said, that he has received his "final orders!"

Some accounts from Paris afford another proof of the humanity and justice of the new Emperor. It will be recollected that a few persons charged as being accomplices in the late conspiracy were acquitted; their names were Dumont and his wife Dubnisson and his wife, and Verdet. Yet the Emperor has sent them to Rochefort, from whence they are to be transported to the Colonies. One of the Paris papers in announcing this intelligence, adds, by way of compliment to the clemency of the Imperial Government. "These persons had lodged most of those conspirators who expired lately on the Place de Greve, and are strongly suspected of being in their secrets, and of course dangerous Royalist fanatics. Under Robespierre, they would never have escaped the guillotine, and have therefore no reason to complain of their present treatment." Undoubtedly there could not be a more just tribute paid to Bonaparte's Government-it is only tolerable when compared with such a tyranny as Robespierre's.

DOVER, July 25. Most of our cruizers have been blown off their stations, and have experienced very bad weather for the time of the year. The French lugger, mentioned in one of my late letters, has continued to cruize occasionally off Beachy head. On the 23d inst. the Stag revenue cutter, of Rye, commanded by Mr. John Betts, the mate, fell in with off Beachy head, two large French luggers, in pursuit of a collier, and gave chace to them, but they escaped; however, following their direction, he again got sight of them, just as they had taken possession of an English brig; he soon came up with them, and after a few broadsides from the. cutter, the luggers separated in different directions, leaving the vessel they had captured : he pursued the leemost of the two, which he drove on shore at Dieppe; he then tacked and stood for the English shore, in the direction where he thought the other lugger and brig might be, and soon after discovered the lugger, having the brig in tow, who perceived the cutter coming, took his men out of the prize, and made a sail for the French shore, to which he was chased by the cutter, until he got under the protection of the batteries of Treport; the cutter then rejoined her recapture, when she found her to be an Irish trader, with a cargo of provisions worth 12000L The master of the brig, who was left on board by the Frenchmen, says, that they informed him (and which agrees with the observation of those on board the cutter) that one of the luggers had 16 guns and 100 men, and the other 10 guns and 70 men. The force of the cufter was 12 guns and 30 men. But notwithstanding this inferiority, such courage and spirit was shewn by the crew of the cutter, that no doubt can arise of the issue of the contest, if the Frenchmen had not dastardly abandoned their prize, and trusted to their fleetness of sailing .-

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 27.

The following Extracts of letters from one of our unfortunate countrymen in Tripoli, are very distressing, and earnestly demand the attention of the government;

TRIPOLI, May 21.

" Since my last nothing worthy of recital has occurred, except the death of one of our crew. I fear this will be the purport of all future letters, as the summer is fast approaching, and the heat will naturally have a fatal effect upon your anfortunate countrymen, who are daily yoked to a large waggon, which they are obliged to drag into the country, where it is loaded with heavy timber for their return."

" April 7.

" A few days ago a small craft, under English colours was captured by the Syren, on this station; in consequence of which the Bashaw sent for the British Coasul, to know whether a United States vessel dare take any articles out of a ressel under the protection of his Majesty's colours? Mr. M'Donough answered in the negative, also gave the Bashaw a written certificate or passport. The vessel was immediately laden, with a very valuable cargo belonging to the Bashaws subjects, set sail for Malia; but unfortunately for his Majesty's Consul, she was captured almost under the forts. Captain Stewart ordered her for Syracuse. The Bashaw sent for Mr. M' Donough, and afterwards giving him sufficient abuse, ordered him to quit his dominions in 12 hours. The next day he set sail for Malta in a small craft; but was captured off the harbour, by the Syren, and sent to Syracuse. His excellency is very much enraged at the conduct of the British Consul, and is determined not to receive him again, let the consequence be what it may, we are in hopes that this affair will bring Lord Nelson off this sta-of our captivity, and yet no hopes of our country's redeeming us! However, I trust, they will recollect in whose mercy we are. Adieu."

IMPORTANT DECISION.

We regret (says a Norfolk paper of the 8th inst.) that we have it not in our power, at this time to present our readers with a more full and satisfactory detail of this important trial and decision; we shall, however, endeavor to obtain it hereafter; the particulars which have been communicated to us we now present.

The schooner Sarah, of this port, was captured by a French privateer on her passage from St. Domingo to this place, in the month of April last, having a cargo of coffee to the value of about 20,000 dollars.

The vessel was carried into a port in the island of Cuba, where the captors disposed of the vessel and cargo, the latter was shipped in another vessel and sent to Charleston. A variety of circumstances satisfied the supercargo of the Sarah that there was no condemnation of vessel or cargo; in consequence of which measures were taken to arrest the cargo as soon as it arrived in Charleston, and a suit was instituted in the Court of the United States for the district of South-Carolina. On the 1st of this month the cause came on, and after a very learned and long argument, the Court pronounced in favor of the plaintiffs, the former owners, on account of the property not having been condemned, before sale to the defendant, the present owner-and ordered restitution of the coffee or payment at an appraised value and costs.

It is communicated, in private intelligence from Paris, that the same tritunal which trice Georges and Moreau will be shortly called together for the trial of the ex-publes, Fauche Be. rel, De la Rocheioucalt, and De Beaumont, who have been feveral years prisoners in the Temple. The object of this measure is, no doubt, to implicate the General's Lecorbe and Macdonald, whom the Confican views with a most suspicious

S. BOURNE.

Extract from a letter dated Bourdeaux, July 18, received at Charleston.

" Several parcels of the cotton that have for i force time patt arrived from your city, have been proked by the planters in a manors to deceive the purchasers: the ends of the bales are of fine quality, but the centre a little below the at to e is very interior - to that the feller here is trequently onliged to make heavy allowances. Such a procedure on the part of the overfeers of the plansers tends to defiroy the repute of your cotion and raise that of Louisiana."

We are obliged (lays the Norfolk Ledger) to a gentleman who came peffenger in the thip Shef field, captain Cowper, for papers as thee as the 25th July, from Bourdeaux, and the 19th from Paris To this date we have files of feveral Paris Pipers. They do not appear to contain souch meet with any thing particular, we shall translate it for our next.

The invalion was much the subject of conver lation. It was understood that Bonsparie had feld his place, &c. &c. to the camp at Boulego: and was foon no follow himfelf. The Sheffield was embargeed for fome days in the river until a florilla had failed for the place of rendezvous. Apprehenfinus had been expressed that M. read had been affaffinated; as he had not been heard of fince he was taken out of prifun. Concerning him we shall submit to our resders a valuable article in our next Jerometwas also much spoken of, and his warringe confured; yet it was genera ally understood that the office of High Admiral was referred for him, to be conferred on him roi mediately after his arrival, and the accomplishment of his divorce.

A Correspondent lives it as his opinion ! that the public prints ought not to be silent on the subject of a navy. Not only the evils and disgrace we have suffered, in consequence of neglecting what is absolutely essential to a commercial country, should be often recapitulated, but those to which in luture, we shall most certainly be hable, should be rung in the ears of the administration, till they awaken from their apathy, (or something worse) and adopt with promptness, and execute with vigour, measures which shall be calculated to protect the property of the citizen from plunder, to maintain the dignity of the government, and to trable it to bestow the merited chastisement upon those who in future shall wantonly insult our sovereignty.

The federal administration wisely foresaw the necessity of laving a foundation for a navy—they knew that in the event of European wars, circumstances similar to those we have recently experienced, and are almost daily experiencing would take place, and take place too with impunity, unless we were prepared, not only to declare but to defend our rights. A law was passed for building twelve seventy four gun ships, six of which it was intended should be completed, with all the dispatch with which such an undertaking could with propriety be conducted. But unfortunately other men and other measures succeeded, and the wise and important plans of their predicessors were laid aside, for those which have exposed individual property to plunder, and the government to the scoff & derision of every petty tyrant on the seas, who chooses to impress our citizens, or to insult our national flag.

Long before this period the six seventy gun ships, ought to have been completely tion, that Mr. King un late Amb flader at equipped and stationed off our most imhe Cou et of London, had informed a gentieman portant sea ports, and our frigates should the West Indies, to protect our commerce in that quater.

Another event has been stated as likely to take place, which shows in a still strong ger point of view the culpability of the present administration, in neglecting a nacy. A rupture with Spain is said to be among the probabilities of the day: The writer does not believe, however that such will be the fact. Our executive has a happy takent for negociation; the treasury we are told is full-and 9,000 dollars outfit, and 9,600 dollars a year salary, will be a comfortable thing for some expecting patriot, who will readily undertaken to appease the wrath of the mighty Don, and restore " harmony to social interconrse" between the two nations.

But suppose the worst-that the angered majesty of Spain should refuse to listen to the numble supplications of our philosophic executive, and should send on a small naval force to blockade our harbours plunder our vessels, and capture our citizeuswhere is our force to repel such aggressiora . Oh! Virginia muil - Oh! the dry docks of the Potomack--- How much better are they than seventy four gun ships and frie

The subject is certainly highly interesting to our mercantile class of citizens thre out the Union; and should the government longer delat measures essential for the protection of private property and national honour, remonstrances should be forwarded from every part of the United States, to arouse the powers that be to the performance of duties too long and too shamefully neglected;

Panegyric on Drunkenness.

Who by difference or by ill forcume lank, Feels not his foul entirentd when he's drink. SWIFT.

Hippocrates says, that it does a man good to get drunk once a month. I wen't say it follows, that it must, of coarse, do him much more good to get drank daily; but, I know there are many people who from practice seem firmly persuaded of its Horace next tells us, that poets who drink water can never make good poetry; and imelligence. Socrates, too was a clever fellow: and he according to Lucian was always drank, for, in conformity to his own confession, he saw all things double. Further let us take the word methe; what does it signify? why both mirth (the son of Bachus) and Drunkenness, so nearly are ther allied. Then in his Flaceus affirms that wine makes us eloquent; and this is confirmed by Kotzebne, Benyowski, where we read that fish are mute for no other reason than that they drink nothing but > Busides when are men so full of moralitv, truth, and charity, as when they are haif seas over? And let me add, that Hogarth observes, that " all the common and neces. " sarv motions, for the purpases of life, are " performed by men in straight lines; but " the graceful and ornamental movements " are made in curved lines." Such are all the movements of a drunken man; he must therefore, be the most graceful of men. It may be said, indeed, that the vine has produced much evil, and I may be told, as a proof, that Erigone was discovered by Bacchus in the shape of a bunch of grapes. Well I know it; and I know also that Erigone is not the only girl that has been discovered by means of the grope. But now in opposition to that circumstance which is so trifling when compared to the advantages I have already stated; let me ask whether soberness has not its direful evils: was not Hermagoras banished E. phesus for too great sobriety? Could inebriety cause any thing more afflicting than banishment? Public Leger.

TRAVELS IN GREECE.

PROPOSALS,

FOR PUBLISHING BY SUBSCRIPTION THE TRAVELS OF Anacharsis the Younger, IN GREECE:

During the middle of the fourth Century, before the Christian Æra, With copious Notes and References.

THE ABBE BARTHELEMY, Keeper of the Medals in the Cabinet of the King of France, and Member of the Royal Academy of Inscriptions and Belles Lettres.

Translated from the French.

First American, from the fourth London edition, IN FOUR VOLUMES.

THE work now offered to the American read er exhibits a complete view of the antiquities manners, customs, religious ceremonies. laws, arts, and literature of ancient Greece, at the period of its greatest splendour. A knowledge of these has hitherto been only attainable by a labo. rious perusal of writers who have been little soll. citous to join entertainment with instruction, The Travels of Anacharsis, on the contrary, are so written, that the reader may frequently be induced to imagine he is perusing a work of mere amusement, invention, and f ncy; till his eye glances to the bottom of the page, when he perceives there is scarcely a sentence, and not a single fact or circumstance, but is supported by the authority of some ancient suther. The a mazing number of these quotations may, perhaps at first eight, seen to have been unnecessary, nd to have more the appearance of a parade of erudition, than to be of any real wrility : but it is to be remembered that, at the same time that they must be highly acceptable to the man of real learning, by enabling him to refer immediate. ly to the original author, they are extremely useful, say, we may say, absolutely necessary, even to such residers as can never be supposed to have any intention to consult the authorities quot. ed; as they clearly shew that such an idea, or such a circumstance, is not merely a decoration or the offspring of the fancy of the author, but immediately taken from some ancient writer, and therefore perfectly accordant to the general scope and plan of the work.
